Planet Venus Worksheet

READING WORKSHEET

NAME: _____ CLASS: _____
DATE: _____ SCORE: _____

Venus is the second closest planet to the sun and is slightly smaller than Earth with craters and volcanoes. It is the hottest planet because of its thick atmosphere and greenhouse effect and it can reach around 500 Degrees Celsius. It is named after the Roman goddess Venus and has no moons. It is the brightest planet in the solar system. It takes about 225 days for Venus to orbit the sun.

Answer the questions.

1. How many moons does Venus have? _____
2. The weather on this planet is _____

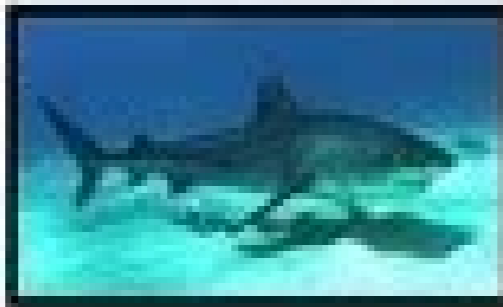

3. How long does it take to orbit the sun? _____

Write 1 interesting fact about the planet.

Name _____

Tiger Sharks

Tiger sharks get their names from the stripes found on their bodies at birth. The stripes are dark and vertical and fade as the shark's age. These predators are large with blunt noses and are vicious hunters. They have gained the reputation of attacking humans, second only to the great white shark. Partially because they do not have the ability to taste as well as other sharks, they are caught more frequently because they do not swim away after attacking a human.

The tiger shark is an excellent hunter. They have an excellent sense of sight and smell as well as sharp, serrated teeth inside powerful jaws. The preferred menu for the tiger shark consists of turtles, which their massive jaws can crunch through the rock hard shell in seconds, as well as stingrays, sea snakes, seals, squids and birds. Some sharks that have been captured have even had old tires and license plates in their stomachs! They really can't taste what they're eating! That must be where they get the nickname, "the wastebasket of the sea" Yuck!

These enormous fish can grow up to twenty five feet long and weigh one thousand nine hundred pounds! They are found mostly in tropical and sub-tropical waters around the world.

READING PASSAGE

DR. SEUSS

EARLY LIFE

Theodor "Ted" Geisel was born on March 24, 1904 in Massachusetts. He credits his mother with his ability to create rhymes, as she soothed him to sleep by "chanting" rhymes. At age 18, he left home to attend Dartmouth University. He started using his pseudonym, "Seuss" while writing for the school paper. He graduated and went on to Oxford University in England with hopes of becoming a professor. He met Helen Palmer there and dropped out to marry her in 1927.

CAREER

The newlyweds moved back to the United States, where Geisel pursued cartooning full-time in New York City. His articles and illustrations were used in many popular magazines. He used his pen name "Seuss" on a 1927 cartoon that was published. Geisel earned a staff position at a paper, then worked for Standard Oil in the advertising department for fifteen years. Geisel was offered a contract to illustrate a children's collection. The book did not sell well, but gave him his break into children's literature. His first book, And to Think I Saw It on Mulberry Street was rejected 27 times before being published in 1937.

WORLD WAR II

Geisel began contributing weekly political cartoons in a liberal magazine in 1942 during World War II. He was too old for the draft, but served with the military making animated training films. He also drew propaganda posters for the Treasury Department and War Production Board.

PUBLICATIONS

Geisel and his wife purchased an old observation tower in California after the war. He spent about eight hours a day writing there, taking breaks to tend to his garden. He wrote and published several children's books in the next several years, including If I Ran the Zoo and Horton Hears a Who! The major turning point in Geisel's career came after a 1954 Life magazine article criticizing children's reading levels. Two publishing companies asked Geisel to write a primer using 220 words. He wrote The Cat in the Hat, published in 1957. It was extremely successful and cemented his place in children's literature. He wrote many more books over the years using his now-simplified style. Some of his best known books are Green Eggs and Ham and How the Grinch Stole Christmas. Many of his films have been adapted into movies.

LEGACY

Geisel was best known as Dr. Seuss, even though he was never actually a doctor. He was given an honorary doctorate from Dartmouth in 1985, and several others later. He won several prestigious awards for his books, including the Pulitzer Prize in 1964. He died in 1991 at age 87. He wrote 46 children's books during his lifetime. Dr. Seuss is one of the best known and beloved children's authors of all time.

AMELIA EARHART

Early Life

Amelia Earhart was born in Atchison, Kansas on July 24, 1897. She spent much of her childhood playing with her sister, Muriel. They enjoyed collecting insects and frogs, playing sports like baseball and softball, and shooting guns. Amelia's parents supported her when she was young, so she and her sister had with her grandparents when she was ten. Amelia's first "flight" occurred when she was only seven years old with help from her sister and uncle, she made a seven-mile roller coaster. She crashed dramatically, but told her sister "was just a flying" 11 years later, Amelia was one of the Wright Brothers' first employees of the Iowa State Fair in 1908. At the fair she had no interest in flying and didn't think too much of the plane. Amelia's father and her mother wanted her to be a doctor, but she didn't last long. Her mother took her to live with friends in Chicago, Illinois in 1911.

Young Adult

After Amelia graduated from high school, she was not sure what she wanted to do. She attended the Ogden School in Pennsylvania, but dropped out to be a female pilot who traveled to wounded soldiers in World War I. Amelia then studied to be a mechanic, but then went back to school to study medicine at Columbia University in 1918. She eventually decided to study medical research with the help of her first plane flight. Her parents resented her in 1920 and Amelia moved them.

First Flight

Amelia and her father visited an air show in California in 1920. Amelia took her first flight and later said "I knew I had to fly" as soon as she got off the ground. With the combination of Amelia's hard work and money from her mother, Amelia was able to pay for flying lessons. She eventually bought her own plane. It was bright yellow and she nicknamed it "Canary". She became the sixth woman to receive a pilot's license and set a new official record for female pilots of 11000 feet.

Crossing the Atlantic

Amelia was invited to take part in a historic flight across the Atlantic in 1928. Amelia flew across the Atlantic Ocean in the airplane, Friendship with pilot 59. She and her co-pilot, Gen. Harold G. Gatty, served as the navigator of the flight. After twenty-one hours of flying, the plane landed in Wales on June 18, 1928. Amelia became the first woman to make the flight across the Atlantic Ocean. When Amelia returned to America she was celebrated. They had a ticker parade for her in New York City and she was invited to the White House to meet President Calvin Coolidge. In 1931 Amelia set a record for a solo flight across the Atlantic.

Disappearance

Amelia Earhart disappeared on July 2, 1937, while attempting to circumnavigate the globe. She was last seen on the island of Nihoa, Hawaii. Her disappearance remains one of the greatest mysteries in aviation history.
